Undergraduate Advising and Research upholds the mission, standards, and requirements of the University, introduces students to the full intellectual richness of undergraduate study at Stanford, supports students in their academic and intellectual pursuits, and instills within them a sense of identity within and belonging to our community. The first of many mentors students find at Stanford. The UAR Academic Advising Directors in the undergraduate residences complement the role of the assigned Stanford Newcomer Guide with a comprehensive understanding of the curriculum. They advise students broadly on their courses of study and long-term goals and can answer questions about academic policy. The UAR advising staff also includes professional advisers in Sweet Hall who are both general and specialized academic advisers in the areas of research and fellowships, pre-professional advising, returning student and transfer student advising, or coterminal advising, as well as advisers in the Athletics Academic Resource Center (https://undergrad.stanford.edu/advising/about-advising/advising-student-athletes) (AARC) who are general and specialized academic advisers for varsity student-athletes.

See the Advising web site (https://undergrad.stanford.edu/advising) for more information about academic advising, programming, and support for undergraduates.

Academic Policy

UAR oversees the implementation of University academic policies pertaining to undergraduates, including requests for exceptions to academic policy (i.e., petitions) and monitoring academic progress. All UAR advisers support students with an academic status (e.g., probation, provisional registration, or suspension). For more information about academic policies that UAR advisers help students navigate, see the Academic Policies (https://undergrad.stanford.edu/planning/academic-policies) web site.

Undergraduate Research and Fellowships

UAR encourages undergraduates to work with faculty on independent projects in research, the arts, and senior synthesis. UAR facilitates these close relationships by providing advising and funding to undergraduates across all disciplines and at all stages of developing an idea into a research project. See the Research and Independent Projects (https://undergradresearch.stanford.edu) web site for more information. For current deadlines, grant types, and program details, see the Student Grants (https://studentgrants.stanford.edu) page. Faculty or departments interested in applying for funding to support undergraduates in their working groups can learn more on the For Faculty (https://undergrad.stanford.edu/opportunities/research/faculty) page.

Together with advisers at the Overseas Resource Center and the Haas Center for Public Service (http://haas.stanford.edu), UAR advisers help prepare students to compete for nationally competitive fellowships. UAR also administers the campus nomination process for several U.S.-based fellowships. See the Fellowships (https://undergrad.stanford.edu/opportunities-research/fellowships) web site for more information on fellowship opportunities.

UAR offers workshops and individual consultations on planning for graduate or professional studies (e.g., business, education, law, and medicine) and on general application procedures, including how to write personal statements, how to solicit letters of recommendation, and how to prepare for interviews. See the Planning for Graduate and Professional School (https://undergrad.stanford.edu/advising/graduate-and-professional-school-general-considerations) web site for more information.

Transitioning New Students

UAR is responsible for the Approaching Stanford program, which guides new students through the process of coming to Stanford, from their admission to the University until the first day of class. This process culminates with New Student Orientation, which is required for all new first-year and transfer students. See the Approaching Stanford (https://approaching.stanford.edu) web site for additional information.

First-Year and Transfer Student Policies

Stanford values the transition process as the foundation for thriving both academically and personally in our community. The following policies support this principle and apply to first-year and new transfer students:

- All first-year and new transfer students are required to attend New Student Orientation and must be in residence by 5:00 p.m. on the first day of NSO, Thursday, September 20, 2018.
- First-year and new transfer students are required to live on campus in University housing for three consecutive quarters in their first year. Should behavior warrant a first-year student’s removal from the residences, that student cannot enroll in classes until he or she has returned to the residential community.
- When circumstances arise which make it advisable for a first-year to take a leave absence at any time during the first year, he or she is required to wait until Autumn Quarter of the following year to return to Stanford.
- First-year and new transfer students cannot enroll in the Summer Quarter prior to their first year unless they are participating in a VPUE-sponsored program. Exceptions are very rarely granted.

Advising

UAR pairs each first-year with two advisers: a Stanford Newcomer Guide (faculty and academic staff) and an Academic Advising Director (https://undergrad.stanford.edu/advising/about-your-advisors/uar-advisors/academic-advising-directors-contact-us) (AAD) in the residences. First-years are matched with their Stanford Newcomer Guides according to their preliminary academic interests and residence. Stanford Newcomer Guides are well suited to help students understand the University and are the first of many mentors students find at Stanford. The UAR Academic Advising Directors in the undergraduate residences complement the role of the assigned Stanford Newcomer Guide with a comprehensive understanding of the curriculum. They advise students broadly on their...
