

UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH

Stanford encourages undergraduates to work with faculty on independent projects in research, the arts, and senior synthesis. Undergraduate Research facilitates these close relationships by providing advising and funding to undergraduates across all disciplines and at all stages of developing an idea into a research project. See the Research and Independent Projects (<https://undergradresearch.stanford.edu>) web site for more information. For current deadlines, grant types, and program details, see the Student Grants (<https://studentgrants.stanford.edu>) page. Faculty or departments interested in applying for funding to support undergraduates in their working groups can learn more on the For Faculty (<https://undergrad.stanford.edu/opportunities/research/faculty>) page.
